PASSING AWAY.—The old Court-house, which has so long been a reproach to the pride of the county, and an eye-sore to every person of taste, is about to undergo the process of demolition. The enterprising commissioners who were appointed by the County Court, commenced on Wednesday last, the work of taking away the window blinds, sash, &c., preparatory to a vigorous onslaught upon it next week. The work will be thoroughly done, and the miserable old pan will be very soon numbered among the things that were, but are not. So mote it be.

If the concern which stands in close proximity to it, and has been christened by courtesy, the "Market House," is not very soon removed by public authority, we would not be surprised if the "b'hoys" take the matter in hand and cause it to follow in the footsteps of the court-house.

P. S. Since the above was written, the chief glory of the venerable building—the cupola—has been removed. It came down on Wednesday afternoon with a perfect smash, amid the jubilant shouts of as happy a set of citizens as we ever heard about on any occasion. The work will now go bravely on; and soon not one stone will be left upon another, to tell where the old fabric so long reared its antiquated head.

A Scene in Court.

Last Friday afternoon, about 4 of the clock, while the circuit court for this county was in session, and very diligently engaged in investigating one of the numerous cases that engrossed its attention, during the term, there came along up Main street, a puff of wind, which drove the sash out of one or two of the upper windows of that crazy old barn that disgraces the centre of our square, and which, by courtesy is called a court house. So terrible was the noise made by the falling sash, that the court and jury, lawyers and clerks, plaintiffs and defendants, sheriffs and spectators, all and singular, were impressed with a conviction that the tenement they were inhabiting was about to be prostrated about their ears—and, "such a gettin' down stairs, you never did see." Judge and jury, lawyers and clients, sheriffs and constables, criminals and spectators, witnesses and loafers were "taken with a leaving," and every mother's son of them, except our clever old friend, Maj. STEWART "vamoosed that rancha" in double quick time. Judge Baxter, it is said, did not run, but he gave one of the handsomest specimens of very "tall walking" on record. Some members of the bar exhibited very respectable speed, and our fat friend Marshall, it is said made a full run to his office.

R. G. Moore was granted license to peddle in the County free for 12 months.

Action in regard to New Jail.

The report of the committee to investigate and make report in regard to building a new County Jail, reported as follows:

Your committee appointed to look into the necessity of remodeling the old jail or building a new one, together with probable cost of same, report as follows:

1. We report that it is not in the opinion of the committee practicable to remodel the old jail so as to make it conform to the conditions necessary for a model jail, that is, security, proper sanitary conditions, and so as to classify the prisoners.

2. We have had submitted to us plans by the Southern Structural Steel Company, of San Antonio, Texas, and the Pauly Jail Company, of St. Louis, which we have carefully examined. We think plan No.--- submitted by the Pauly Co. to be preferred. The plans are not at hand owing as we believe to a miscarriage by the mails, but they contemplate a two-story brick, two rooms and hall in front for Jailer, with all back. Lower floor for Jailer's office and compartments for female prisoners and juvenile prisoners, with kitchen. Up-stairs to be used as cell-rooms, 4 cells with room to place second tier of cells on top cells if necessary, 7x7x7, best steel material with gratings opposite windows. The cell capacity is four per cell, or thirty-two in all, including $ corridors between cells, which could be increased to fifty-two by adding second tier of cells. The probable cost we think for the building, cells, and sewerage, not including furnace or steam pipes, will not exceed $2500.00.

We also recommend that the old lot be sold and a new one now vacant on the River bank be bought. We think this arrangement can be made. We think the old building can also be readily disposed of.

Your committee would most earnestly urge upon the Court the necessity of taking steps in this direction. The old jail is neither secure, or sanitary, nor does it allow proper classification. In no particular does it comply with the requirements of the Statute law or our duty as a civilized people to the unfortunate, vicious though they may be, who are incarcerated in these horrible dungeons.

Williamson County has had seven jails since 1800. Bridge Street has been the location of five. From 1800 to 1816, the first jail was located at 117 Third Avenue North. In 1817, a two-story log jail was built on the west corner of Bridge Street and 2nd Avenue North and stood until 1858. The third jail was built in the same location. It was built of stone and brick with two cells upstairs and two down. In 1905, the county purchased the White Tavern lot and hired Nashville architect T.K. Colley to build a three-story brick jail at a cost of $15,000. By 1941, the fourth jail was deemed inadequate so the county hired J.C. Russell of Nashville to construct this jail, No. 5, of concrete, rock and steel for $25,000. In 1971, the sixth jail was constructed on the adjoining lot for $350,000, and it served the county until the seventh was constructed on Century Court for $5.3 million in 1989.
